IPMA Research Awards 2010 Moving research forward

Objectives

The IPMA Research Awards aim to promote excellent research to enhance project management. With these annual awards IPMA recognises recent outstanding contributions to the development of the discipline and profession project management through professionally conducted research.

General criteria

Researchers may come from academia, other research institutions or industry. Researchers may come from disciplines other than project management but must contribute to the development of project, program management, project-oriented companies or any element named in the ICB – International Competence Baseline.

The candidates apply with a research project. The research project must have had at least a duration of one year and must be completed, when the application is handed in. Completion of research project may date back to 1. January 2009.

If a researcher (or lead researcher of a team) wins an IPMA Research Award, this person should not apply for the IPMA Research Awards the following three years.

Categories

IPMA Young Researcher Award: Cutting edge research of a young researcher (born 1975 or later, or the candidate can prove that he/she is less than 10 years involved in research).

IPMA Research Award: Cutting edge research project of a researcher or a team. The application of interdisciplinary projects is encouraged.

Prizes

In each category we distinguish two prizes:

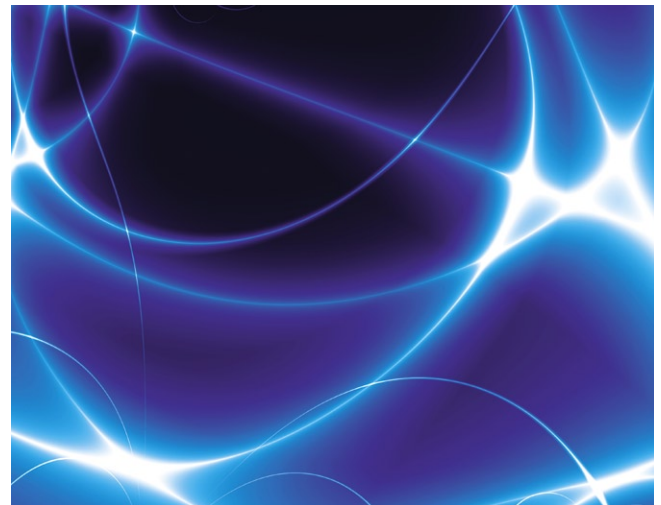

- Research Award Winner
- Honours for Outstanding Research Contributions.

Winners and honours can present their research at the annual IPMA World Congress, where they are honoured.

Evaluation criteria

In the evaluation the jury considers the research results as well as the research process. The evaluation criteria are:

- Research results achieved
- Originality and innovation
- Theoretical foundation

- Transparency and professionalism of research process
- Practical relevance
- Management as research project
